PRIDE COMMUNITY PARADE
The Brighton Pride LGBT+ Community Parade is flamboyant, vibrant and colourful, a show-stopping spectacle not to be missed. One of the undisputed highlights of the Brighton & Hove Pride weekend it showcases the city’s charities, community groups, small businesses as well as the invaluable blue light services and statutory partners. The Brighton & Hove Pride 2019 parade will celebrate the 50th anniversary of the 1969 Stonewall Inn uprising in New York City that ignited the worldwide Pride movement, with the theme Generations of Love - Celebrating 50 years of Campaigning with Pride.

Brighton Pride will feature campaigning for global LGBT+ rights at the front of the parade with representatives of the BAME and trans communities along with the fabulous Prancing Elites, a black male dance troupe from Alabama, USA. Pride’s campaigning placards this year will feature LGBT+ Heroes who have devoted their lives, passion and energies to advance global LGBT+ rights.

This year’s parade route is slightly different from 2018 due to the Valley Gardens development. The Brighton Pride Community Parade will start from the Peace Statue, Hove Lawns at 11am on Saturday August 3. It will progress along the seafront, passing the Hilton Brighton Metropole on the left, and the i360 on the right - turning left up West Street, past the Clock Tower, then along Queens Road towards Brighton Station, before turning right down North Road just past Community Base. At the bottom of North Road, the parade will turn left to rejoin the old route and progress along Gloucester Place and London Road finishing as usual in Preston Park.

PRIDE IN THE PARK
@ PRESTON PARK
The turnstiles at Preston Park will open at noon on Saturday Aug 3. To avoid queues, arrive shortly after the parade or get to the park before the parade arrives. Security on the park will be very tight, the less you carry, the quicker you’ll get in. If it’s sunny take plenty of sunscreen and keep yourself hydrated all day. You will not be allowed to take food, drink or animals onto the Pride site with you.

Pop Princess Kylie Minogue will headline the Generations of Love Festival in Preston Park performing a very special show just for Brighton Pride including all her hits. The word ‘Legend’ is bandied around far too easily, however Kylie is truly a legend and LGBT+ Icon. Other main stage performers will include Clean Bandit, Fleur East, the ABBA tribute band Björn Again, Alice Chater, Zak Abel and direct from the USA, the seven piece, black male dance troupe and All4 reality stars the Prancing Elites who are flying in from Alabama especially to lead the Brighton Pride Parade.

Attractions on the park this year includes the Legends Cabaret Big Top featuring the finest line-up of drag queens and singers at any UK Pride, the Pride Dance Big Top hosted by He.She.They., DIVA dance tent, Brut Men’s Dance Tent, Women’s Performance Stage, and the BAME and Queer Town stages.

Add to that the Funfair, Family Diversity Area, Trans and Access tents, and the Community Village area, and Brighton & Hove Pride 2019 will be the most diverse ever with something for everyone. The main stage running orders and line-ups in the various entertainment areas will be available on the big screens in Preston Park all weekend.

FRIDAY 2
1. Boogaloo Bingo at 7pm: Join showbiz sensation Boogaloo Stu for frivolity, shenanigans and above all else, bingo! Feel the tension rise as Stu’s balls begin to churn, and when they finally drop expect non-stop nonsense, outrageous games, obscene works of art, poetry slams, hilarious prizes and, of course, some downright ballys bingo. Stu’s gift hamper is stuffed to the brim with exotic prizes including the ubiquitous Signed Framed Photograph, so go on down and win it big! Free entry with Festival or PVP wristband.

2. The Prancing Elites: The first European performance by the Prancing Elites. A dance team based in Mobile, Alabama, they are made up of individuals who identify as gay or gender non-conforming, which has resulted in the group being banned from competitions and parades in the USA. Stars of a US reality TV series, The Prancing Elites Project, the dancers find other ways to showcase their talent, from performing in the stands at football games to dancing on cruises. Free before 11pm.

SUNDAY 4

LOVEBN1FEST: 1.30–9.30pm, Preston Park, (no entry after 7.30pm) celebrates everything Brighton & Hove, bringing all communities and rainbow families together for an afternoon of fun on the park while raising funds for the Pride Social Impact Fund to deliver positive social impact back to Brighton & Hove’s communities. LOVEBN1FEST features family friendly entertainment, circus skills, performance artists, cabaret, dance tents, street food, an accessibly tent and wellbeing area, plus much more. Children under 12 are free but require a ticket from ticket shop.

Headlining the MAIN STAGE: global recording artist Jessie J and the legend that is Grace Jones, who has headlined almost every major festival across the world, created more iconic ‘looks’ than anyone alive and famously hula-hooped at the Queen’s 90th birthday celebrations. They will be supported by X-Factor 2017 winners Rak-Su, plus Nina Nesbitt, Grace Carter and the House Gospel Choir.

GUILTY PLEASURES Dance Tent, a club night like no other, is immersive, unashamedly unapologetic and includes YOU in its quest to make your big night out great again.

THE GLORY presents exciting new queer faces who know how to rock a stage! The Glory’s in-house stars are known for being provocative, exciting and radical and are often the benchmark for quality that challenges the performance art meets fabulousness. Jonny Woo and John Sizzle host and Rudi Douglas will lead the legendary Big Gay Songbook sing-along live on piano. All this plus a DJ to bring the sounds that make The Glory one hell of a rocking place to be!
Brighton’s Trading Post Coffee Roasters are to share profits with Pride in Brighton & Hove. What started as a business project to rejuvenate a troubled restaurant site in central Brighton has grown to become one of Sussex’s most dynamic start-ups. Now Trading Post Coffee Roasters are set to take a leap forward this July by sharing profits from the firm’s growth with the county’s charitable and non-profit sector, in what is set to become an annual profit-sharing tradition.

From July 15 to August 11, focussed around Brighton Pride month, the local firm will donate 25p from every takeaway cup of coffee to Brighton & Hove Pride’s community fundraising, the first annual charity recipient. The scheme will run across the group’s three venues located in Brighton’s Ship Street, Kensington Gardens and Cliffe High Street, Lewes. The campaign is about more than just raising cash funds too. Special Pride Month cups have been printed, which, like Trading Posts’ regular disposable vessels, are formed of a 100% compostable cup and lid. The celebratory design is emblazoned with a Pride flag inspired design to increase awareness and visibility, which the firm has a year-round commitment to.

The team behind Trading Post Coffee Roasters are no strangers to working with the LGBT+ communities. Founder Michael Deol said: “Having run Brighton’s largest gay venue [Club Revenge] for 12 years and stepped in to help with the city’s Pride in 2012, I wanted to keep that tradition alive with our new venture. As with so many of the great businesses across Sussex, inclusivity in our workforce is so important, staff-members from the LGBT+ communities have been a core part of our success. The choice of Brighton & Hove Pride as our first charity partner seemed a natural one, and a great chance to raise a glass (or cup of coffee) to our city’s diversity.”

Harry Woodhams, group Operations Manager, added: “Working in a dynamic, local, family-run business in Brighton & Hove is great, and it’s amazing to see the support we’ve been given by the local communities. As we grew, we knew, as a management team, that the moment was right to give something back to those who have helped us become a core part of the city’s communities.”

Paul Kemp, Managing Director at Brighton & Hove Pride, said: “We’re thrilled that Trading Post Coffee Roasters have come onboard to support Brighton & Hove Pride’s fundraising for local charities and community groups through their coffee sales during Pride month. We’re delighted to have been chosen as the first benefactor for the great scheme. We’re always happy to engage with businesses who want to support Pride and the local communities.”

Bitch, Please! at Brighton Pride

Bitch, Please! the LGBT+ party collective presents Bitch, Pride! an extravaganza of seaside sass, sparkles and a spicy soundtrack of disco and house while raising funds for the Brighton Rainbow Fund at Brighton’s beachside Tempest Inn on Saturday, August 3.

Bitch, Pride! celebrate Pride 2019 with a stunning line-up of DJs and fierce performers including guest DJs, Italo disco sensation Tech Support, Freshly Squeezed house heroine DJ Faro, beat maestro Blixa and Ramos with Bitch, Please!’s resident DJs sassy Suze Rosser, spice boys ZenZero, the legendary Affy Go Bang, disco queens Wildblood & Queenie and Ms Vivi Westwood of the Valleys herself, Butch Queen plus exclusive sizzling performances from Alpha Bites, Baby, Black Diamond and more TBA.

GTR UNVEILS ‘TRAINBOW’ LIVERY TRAIN FOR BRIGHTON PRIDE

Ahead of Brighton and Hove Pride, Govia Thameslink Railway (GTV) unveils a special edition train emblazoned with a rainbow livery.

The eye-catching makeover of the Thameslink Class 700 train was designed by a GTR apprentice and celebrates the rail company’s thriving LGBT+ communities. Dubbed ‘trainbow’ by GTR colleagues, the 12-carriage train was given its new look in recent weeks at Hornsey depot in north London in a team effort featuring colleagues from branding, fleet and engineering.

It will be part of the Thameslink fleet operating an enhanced service for hundreds of thousands of revelers travelling to and from Brighton Pride on August 2-4, which is the city’s busiest weekend of the year.

The rainbow design will also be used on merchandise and GTR’s first ever float in the Pride parade, which will carry members of the company’s LGBT+ network and other colleagues. It is accompanied by GTR’s Pride motto: Our People Bring Out Our Best Colours.

Maggie Luckhurst, 21, GTR’s Design & Content Apprentice and a member of its LGBT+ network, said: “This was a really special project to work on for me, and I’m grateful that I got to work alongside many other fantastic people in the company. I’ve always had a huge interest in the railways, so to be able to combine that with my creativity in this job has been a dream. I’ll be keeping an eye out for this train on my commute.”

Maggie, who joined the marketing team through GTR’s apprenticeship programme in April 2018, added: “Whether you’re a member of the LGBT+ communities or not, I hope that the train brings joy to everyone who sees it and that it also raises awareness of LGBT+ issues.”

Stuart Meek, Train Services Director and Chair of GTR’s LGBT+ network, said: “We are absolutely delighted to see the train out in passenger service. This symbol of support shows how everyone is welcome on our services and celebrates our LGBT+ colleagues.”

GTR’s LGBT+ network is made up of colleagues and advocates from departments across the organisation. It serves as a support and social network, and making plans for Pride have topped the agenda at recent meetings. GTR, which runs Southern, Thameslink and Gatwick Express services out of Brighton, is preparing an enhanced rail service during Brighton Pride with services running late into the night on Saturday, August 3 to help visitors to the city get home.

Following months of planning with event organisers, Sussex Police, Brighton & Hove City Council and other local partners, there will be additional and longer services throughout the weekend. An enhanced ‘rainbow’ queuing system will channel passengers leaving the city into the appropriate queue for their train before they get to the station.

Last month, GTR pledged to do even more to attract and retain more women working in the rail industry and as part of this effort has established a Women’s Network Group.

Paul Kemp, Managing Director of Brighton & Hove Pride 2019, said: “We’re thrilled by the new train design, in support of GTR’s LGBT+ colleagues for Brighton & Hove Pride and hope that visitors to the city enjoy travelling to Pride by it! The creative is a great visual reminder of the importance of Pride and LGBT+ and allies standing together to celebrate and defend the progress that has been made by the LGBT+ communities. It also symbolises our positive working partnership with GTR in making sure travellers can get to and from the city over Pride weekend.”

GOODBYE TIM AND THANK YOU FROM A GRATEFUL COMMUNITY

Tim Procter, welfare rights coordinator, retires after over 30 years of supporting the Brighton & Hove HIV+ community. By Travis Cox, THT Health Promotion Coordinator.

In 1986, Tim Procter joined Terrence Higgins Trust (THT) as a volunteer helping people living with HIV and AIDS related conditions. Initially facilitating and creating the first social group of its kind, this later became an independent charity called Frontliners. THT offered people living with HIV a range of support services such as buddies, counselling and general day to day help. Tim did this through what was known as the general services group, offering practical assistance with decorating, driving and shopping, along with supporting a number of people living with HIV who just wanted the financial independence to manage their own care.

In the 1980/90s there was a large amount of discrimination and stigmatisation of people living with HIV and sadly we still see this today. Some of Tim’s clients informed him that they were denied access to DHSS (Benefits Office), along with other outside agencies. At the time, clients told Tim that they were having security called on them just for living with HIV. Tim decided that it was time to act! So he set himself up as an advocacy worker and communicated with the agencies on behalf of his clients. Very quickly this service became overwhelmed and the small group of volunteers struggled to cope with the influx of people living with HIV who were accessing the service.

THT recognised the need to place this service within its portfolio and it became known locally as the Advice Centre. This meant that paid staff could now support the Brighton & Hove community, by employing a lawyer, housing advisor and a welfare rights worker. Tim took up his employment in 1988 and worked for Open Door and then returned to THT. His total service to the HIV community was from 1988–2019

Tim’s motivation to become part of the THT team came from the large amount of personal bereavement. Having worked in the Country Cousins cabaret bar in London from 1977, he saw eight of his friends pass away from HIV related conditions over the next decade. He also helped support other friends with their end of life care. Tim’s own diagnoses came while working for THT, at the time life expectancy was often short and Tim felt that this would be a perfect way to spend the possible short time he might have left. Thankfully Tim went on to support hundreds of people living with HIV to access the benefits they were entitled to and helped pave the way for people living with HIV to be free from discrimination. He continued supporting people living with HIV for another three decades and has made a huge contribution to the Brighton & Hove LGBT+ communities.

We at THT would like to say a massive thank you to Tim for all the dedication he has shown to his clients and the huge commitment to THT as an organisation. Everyone at THT would like to thank Tim for everything he has done and continues to do for people living with HIV. We would like to wish him all the best for the future and a happy retirement with Molly, his new puppy. Once again thank you so much for your dedication to the HIV community and I confidently say you will be truly missed by the staff and clients of THT Brighton. A fond farewell and remember - even though you’re no longer working for THT your dedication and legacy lives on!

BIZARRE BAZAAR RAISES NEARLY £3,000 FOR THE SUSSEX BEACON

Bizarre Bazaar, took place at Subline and the Sussex Beacon charity shop over the Bank Holiday weekend (May 26-27), raising nearly £3,000 for the Sussex Beacon.

Paul Stewart, one of the volunteers, said: “What an amazing total. Thanks to everyone who donated goods, came to support us and bought tickets for the associated raffle. Many thanks also to the volunteers who helped prepare and clean all the items for the sale and those who helped with sales on the day.

“Special thanks to Steve at Subline for hosting Bizarre Bazaar at the club on Sunday 27, Affinity Bar for hosting the draw for the raffle and all those who donated prizes for the raffle, Theatre Royal (ATG Tickets) Prowler, Legends, Subline, Affinity Bar, Nice N Naughty, Patterns Club and Diva Cafe. Watch this space for the next Bizarre Bazaar which is coming again soon!

BBW RAISE £10,243 FOR LOCAL GOOD CAUSES

Brighton Bear Weekend (BBW) raised a total of £10,243 from their fundraising activities in 2018–19 for local good causes, beating last years record total raised of £10,060. BBW raised the money at events during the year culminating in the Brighton Bear Weekend from June 13-16. They have donated £7,000 to the Rainbow Fund, £1,143 to Lunch Positive and £2,100 to the Brighton & Hove LGBT Community Safety Forum.

Graham Munday, Chair of BBW, said: “We’d especially like to thank the guys at The Amsterdam Bar & Kitchen, Bar Broadway, The Camelotord and Subline, who’ve been very supportive and hosted a number of events for us throughout the year.

“Given the economic climate we’re in, this is a doubly impressive figure we’ve raised and we really owe a huge debt of gratitude to everyone who supported us this year, and in particular, all those who came to our events, braved the rain, dug deep and created a weekend in June that everyone enjoyed.

“Next year will be our 10th birthday and we’re looking forward to making BBW even bigger and better.”

Brighton Bear Weekend in 2019 will be held over the weekend of June 25-28, 2020.

Players and supporters of Brighton & Hove Sea Serpents RFC took turns to cycle 500 miles to raise funds to send a team from Brighton to the 2020 Bingham Cup in Ottawa, Canada. The fundraiser took place on Sunday, July 21 on the patio of the Amsterdam Bar & Kitchen on 4 static cycles loaned by Pure Gym.

The Bingham Cup is the world cup for gay and inclusive rugby teams worldwide; at the last Bingham Cup, staged in Amsterdam in 2018, the Sea Serpents won the Challenger Bowl. They need to raise £2,000 to help defend the trophy in Ottawa and the static cycle ride is one of a number of fundraisers planned for 2019-20.

Brighton & Hove Sea Serpents RFC was set up in 2015 with the aim of giving gay, bi and trans men the opportunity to play rugby that many of them missed whilst at school. They are the youngest Rugby Club in Sussex and 2018 was their first year playing in the Sussex 4 East Division.

The Sea Serpents are sponsored by Bar Broadway and are the current holders of the Golden Handbag Award for Favourite Sports Team.

Sam Stephens was given a great send off from Charles Street Tap on Thursday, July 4 where, since starting to work there 10 years ago, he has risen through the ranks to become one of the most popular managers on the commercial LGBT+ scene. Sam leaves Brighton to take over his own venue, The Tivoli in Cheltenham, and was given a send off by Sally Vate, Mrs Moore and Miss Penny with DJ Claire Fuller providing sounds and lights for the evening.

Brighton Tavern raise £335 for Rainbow Fund

Paul Murray (3rd from left), assistant manager at Brighton Tavern, received a certificate from the Brighton Rainbow Fund for raising £335 at Sheriff Ford’s Annual Hoedow in the end of May.

Joe Steven and George Oakley of O/S Barbers will be raising funds at their Brighton shops in George Street and Castle Square, along with the help of guest barbers on Pride Friday, August 2. Joe and George said: “We hope this will be our biggest fundraising day to date. We think it’s very important to give back to our communities and to the people who need it most.”

Both shops will be open on Friday, August 2 from 10am-7pm and all proceeds from each haircut will be donated to the Rainbow Fund who give grants to local LGBT/HIV organisations that deliver effective frontline services to LGBT+ people in Brighton & Hove. No appointments are needed, just turn up, have a beer and let the boys run their fingers through your hair.

This is the fourth year running they’ve staged a fundraising event to kick off Pride weekend. In the last two years they raised £990 for the Sussex Beacon at their shop in George Street.

HIV STIGMA REMAINS AS RIFE AS EVER IN 2019!

New polling reveals 45% of gay and lesbian Brits would feel ‘uncomfortable’ having sex with someone with HIV and on effective treatment despite zero risk of transmission.

On the anniversary of Terry Higgins' death (July 4), one of the first people to die of an AIDS-related illness, a new survey revealed that attitudes around HIV remain stuck in the 1980s. This comes despite huge medical progress in the fight against HIV since Terry’s death in 1982, including that people living with the virus and on effective treatment can’t pass it on – with or without a condom. However, the new survey from HIV and sexual health charity Terrence Higgins Trust (THT) shows that under half (47%) of gay and lesbian Brits are still not aware of this stigma-busting fact. This compares with 23% of bisexual respondents.

While 68% of gay and lesbian Brits were comfortable going on a date with someone living with HIV, 45% still said they’d feel uncomfortable having sex with someone living with HIV who is on effective treatment. In the UK, 97% of those diagnosed and on treatment remain stuck in the 1980s. NHS ENGLAND RECOMMENDS UNCAPPED ACCESS TO PREP TRIAL

The HIV prevention drug PrEP is a step closer to being made available to anyone who needs it through the NHS. This follows a meeting last month between Simon Stevens, Chief Executive of NHS England, NAT (National AIDS Trust), Terrence Higgins Trust (THT), and PrEPster. NHS England announced five steps towards better access to the HIV prevention drug PrEP including recommending removing the capped number of places on the ongoing national IMPACT Trial.

Deborah Gold, Chief Executive of NAT, said: “The steps NHS England have outlined are extremely welcome, but there remain serious barriers to getting PrEP to those who need it. We need the Department of Health and Social Care to commit the necessary funding for routine commissioning as planning for this begins in earnest.

“Local authorities are running sexual health services with a disappearing pool of public health funding. Sexual Health services are struggling. Nevertheless we are facing an emergency. People are getting HIV because of the shambolic postcode lottery that limits PrEP access; local authorities need to rise to the challenge of being able to provide it.

“Lastly, we need the IMPACT Trial researchers to support the obvious argument that a trial designed to answer questions about implementing a new drug will only give meaningful results if data isn’t artificially deflated with a capped number of participants. Currently, people are being diagnosed with HIV while they wait for PrEP to become available in their area – for those people it is too late for PrEP. This is unacceptable. NAT will remain at the forefront of the fight for this game-changing drug.”

Aggregate support for LGBT+ and questioning people in the South East since 1975. We plan to extend our hours in 2020, when we’re celebrating 45 years of listening to the LGBT+ communities.

The helpline is confidential and run by LGBT+ volunteers. If you want to get in contact with Switchboard, you can call them on 01273 204050, email them at info@switchboard.org.uk, or use webchat: switchboard.org.uk/helpline

Allsorts Youth Project has been chosen as one of the 20 charities newly elected Mayor Alexandra Phillips will be supporting during her Mayoral year. Delivering services in both Brighton & Hove and West Sussex, Allsorts Youth Project listens to, supports and connects young people under 26 who are lesbian, gay, bisexual, trans or unsure (LGBTU) of their sexual orientation and/or gender identity through youth groups, one-on-one support and advocacy. They also offer LGBTU and trans awareness training for professionals and deliver awareness raising workshops in local schools.

Katie Vincent, Allsorts Youth Project’s Co-Director, said: “We are absolutely delighted to have been chosen as one of the Mayor’s 2019-2020 charities. It means a great deal to us as a project, both in recognition of the work we do and in giving us a platform to raise awareness of the needs and issues faced by vulnerable LGBTU youth. It’s a great honour.”

Each year, the Mayor actively supports a range of Brighton & Hove charities who work hard to improve the lives of the local communities. Alongside Allsorts Youth Project the other chosen charities this year are BHT, Brighton’s Women’s Centre, CRUSE, Grace Eye, Oasis Project, RISE, Survivors’ Network, Sussex Nightstop Sustrans, Whoopsalaysia, Amaze, Brighton Table Tennis Club, Clock Town Sanctuary, Extratime, Hummingbird Project, Off the Fence, Rockinghorse, and The Martlets.

THE FOOD CHAIN IS IN CRISIS AND NEEDS YOUR HELP!

All funders are under great pressure from all the charities that need their help and the funding pot is shrinking. Unfortunately, some of the Food Chain’s regular annual funding has not been forthcoming or delayed due to the volume of applications this year. They need to raise £40,000 immediately, and £100,000 by the end of the year to continue providing their much-needed services. If they don’t raise these amounts, they will have to cut services and ultimately close their doors. Yes, it’s that serious!

“I just wanted to let everybody at the Food Chain know how my life has changed, and all for the better. I’ve managed to put another 1/2 kilo on.”

Martyn

“Eating Together is nowhere near what I imagined it to be! It’s easy to talk to people there. There’s such a great mix of people with different HIV experiences – straight, gay, women and men all mingling with each other!”

WHITEHAWK FC HOST FOOTBALL UNITED, A CELEBRATION OF TOGETHERNESS

Football United - A Celebration of Togetherness, is a ground-breaking football match featuring Premier League All-Stars, Former Champions League winners and Internationals, playing against Rainbow Rovers, a team comprised of LGBT+ sports people, activists and celebrities.

The Football Industry continues to embrace diversity and inclusion within its sport, while more and more people are challenging outdated perceptions, and making a stand. One of the most high profile mixed-gender matches ever played, Football United will kick off at Whitehawk FC’s TerraPura Ground in East Brighton at 3pm on the Sunday (4) of Brighton & Hove Pride weekend. The ex-Premier League All Star team features ex-players from Manchester United, Newcastle United, Brighton & Hove Albion, Aston Villa and Tottenham Hotspur. The LGBT+ team will be player managed by transgender writer and broadcaster, Sophie Cook.

Sophie Cook said: “When I came out as transgender in Premier League football I had friends that were concerned for my safety, there’d never been a trans woman working within the game. But rather than abuse and hatred I was greeted with love and respect from fans, players and management alike. Yes there were still those that held on to their bigotry but they were the minority. Football holds a unique position within our society to carry the message of diversity and equality into areas that are often ignored and written off. The game is a universal language that transcends social barriers and this game will send out the message that the beautiful game belongs to everyone regardless of sexuality, gender identity, race, religion or gender. Football United? It’s bigger than that, it’s People United!”

Maria Horner from the Football Supporters Association (FSA), added: “The FSA is all about showing people that live football is on their doorstep. Fans for Diversity helps those who may not think football is for them get along to the game. That’s why we’re proud to support and take part in this event at Whitehawk FC – it promises to be an excellent occasion demonstrating just how welcoming football can be.”

Kevin Miller, for Whitehawk Football Club, said: “We’re proud to be hosting such an inspirational game, and on behalf of the club I’d like to thank everyone who has helped put this together. We look forward to welcoming fans from the world of football and beyond. This match is an invitation to all ages, colours, races, faiths, and genders, to join us and celebrate Inclusion through football, on a weekend where Brighton & Hove lights a beacon for inclusivity around the world.”

Football United, A Celebration of Togetherness, Whitehawk Football Club, the TerraPura Ground, East Brighton Park, Brighton, East Sussex, BN2 5TS on Sunday, August 4 from 12.30pm (kick off 3pm).

Brighton & Hove Sea Serpents had their annual dinner at Hove Rugby Club on Saturday, June 22, following on from their AGM earlier in the afternoon. Guest speaker for the evening was Gavin Ross, the president of Sussex RFU, who was clearly thrilled to have been invited to talk at the dinner.

In his speech, Club Chairman Ian Chaplin reported 2019-20 was the club’s third full season and second in the Sussex Leagues. Fifty-five players appeared in 31 games over league matches, friendlies and tournaments with five of those players appearing for the club for the first time. The team won nine out of 19 league matches putting 421 points on the scoreboard in those games.

With the help of the Glasgow Alphas, the Sea Serpents took a team to the Bingham Cup in Amsterdam and took a full squad of players to Newcastle to the Hadrian’s Cup 10s tournament - returning from both tournaments with silverware. They also took a full squad of players to Dublin for the Union Cup.

Ian said: “If people want to tell us that gay and inclusive rugby isn’t mainstream what is more mainstream than a rugby tournament with 45 sides from 14 countries sponsored by Bank of Ireland, Vodafone and Guinness, and what a lovely sight their Brewery gates were. We were upgraded to the second tier, showing how well we have progressed. It wasn’t easy, and we didn’t pick up any silverware this time, but we are a strong club with a strong rugby game.

“You can never guarantee the future, but I am confident that next season we will consolidate our place within Sussex RFU and next year we will take a squad to Ottawa for the Bingham Cup. It’ll be hard work, but I trust you all to succeed.”

Kathy Caton treated everyone present to a tipple of Brighton Gin.

The big awards of the evening presented were: Supporter of the Year - Victoria Mann, Club Man of the Year - Richard Denslow, Special Award for team services - Russell Kingaby, Best Newcomer - Misael Flores Perez, Captain’s Award - Jack Cahill, Players’ Players - Dan Humphrey and Callum Blackburn.

MORNING GLORY
— BRIGHTON THREE SOME EDINBURGH BOUND

Three of Brighton’s top men in the entertainment business head for the Edinburgh Fringe with a new one-man show about ageism in the LGBT+ communities. They tell Brian Butler why the issue is so topical and crucial to equal rights.

Publisher and broadcaster Andrew Kay, who for many years was one of the country’s leading art directors for top publishing houses, has penned a dark and comic play which will set its audience thinking and talking.

For over 16 years Andrew designed covers for books by authors such as Jackie Collins, Dame Edna and Brighton writer Peter James’ first four novels. Now an anchor and presenter at Brighton-based local commercial TV company Latest TV, he has turned his hand to writing a one-man show for his friend, local drag performer Jason Sutton (aka Miss Jason).

The third in the trio is Allan Cardew, a well-known local theatre and event director. In 2018 he directed Jason in a one-man show called Twinkle at the B Right On community festival. “I liked Twinkle and Jason’s amazing performance as an ageing panto dame whose life was disintegrating.”

It inspired him to agree to direct Morning Glory specifically for Jason. When Jason received the script, he replied within an hour. Though there are plenty of laughs in the piece, it does treat a serious topic, that of ageism in the LGBT+ communities: “It deals with the hostile behaviour of some young gay men, a lack of understanding, ignorance and a complacency about how we got to where we are in terms of equality,” says Andrew.

The play centres round David, a 50-something gay man and tells of his night out with friends for a birthday and how the group are treated. “There are twists and turns in the story and I won’t give it all away but it does have a good ending,” says Allan.

Allan has spent a lifetime organising corporate events, lecturing in drama and working at the now closed K-bis school in Brighton.

Many plays and big-cast musicals later he helped to found Brighton Cares in the 1990s, which through theatre groups helped raise funds for people with HIV. He works with actor Amanda Redman at her Ealing Artists Theatre School.

“When I read Morning Glory I leapt at the chance of directing it. It’s a privilege to have such direct contact one to one with Jason. This story is my story. I was 15 when homosexuality was legalised. It’s important everyone knows the history. Today is built on the shoulders of what happened then. It’s important to remember that back then I couldn’t get a mortgage with my gay partner.”

Jason Sutton is well known in Brighton and further afield as Miss Jason, a character he created 21 years ago. Jason was living in Portsmouth and met the drag legend Phil Starr. “Phil got me going, and David Raven aka Maisie Trollette helped me greatly. Doing drag was the first job I really enjoyed. I love a live audience, it’s different every night and it’s a real exchange between humans.”

His stage appearances have included plays and musicals — notably the Boys in the Band and Privates on Parade. “Those shows made me hungry to do other things as well as drag. When Twinkle happened it was the most challenging thing I’d ever faced. I wouldn’t have got through it without Allan. This new show is an immense compliment to me by Andrew.”

I asked Jason where he starts with a one-man script. “At the beginning. I’m very dyslexic, so reading and line-learning is hard. The three of us sat down for a long time and discussed the situation the character David finds himself in.”

Andrew adds “I could hear Jason’s voice when I wrote it and I knew how he would handle it. This is a very real and personal story and very emotional for all three of us. David loves his friends; he’s not a brave man and this is the first time he has taken a stand on anything, and he takes action and then tells us about the aftermath.”

Jason’s technique has been to learn the dialogue, tied to moves and actions, but admits “Once it’s in, it’s in. If I get into a problem with the play, it’s only me who can get myself out of it. David is very real to me. I hope it’s a project we can develop if we can get sponsorship to carry it forward beyond Edinburgh.”

“I love a live audience, it’s different every night and it’s a real exchange between humans”

NEW STEINE BISTRO
A slice of Paris in the heart of Kemptown

This quirky French bistro offers traditional French dishes prepared from fresh local ingredients by young French trained chef Roman Martiné - who has been creating classic dishes in the New Steine kitchens for the last four years. Located on the ground floor of the New Steine Hotel, the bistro seats just 20 people so it’s important to make a reservation. There is also a room for private parties downstairs that can seat around 30 people.

I’ve been eating at the New Steine Bistro for the last 15 years. I’m a creature of habit and have to admit I nearly always order the same dishes starting with assiette de charcuterie, a sharing plate for two people (£13.75) with saucisson, chorizo, bayonne ham, duck rillettes, and warm toast (supplement of £2.50 when part of the specials/offers).

Followed by a glorious rare rib eye steak with beurre Maître D’hôtel, salad and chips for £17.50 (supplement of £2.50 when part of the specials/offers) and closing with what for me is the best desert in the city - a crème brulée served in a flat dish (£5.95).

For his main course my husband usually chooses the chicken ballotine stuffed with seasonal vegetables, served in a mustard sauce with gratin dauphinois (£14.50). Tender moist circles of chicken, perfectly prepared potatoes all dressed in a tasty mustard sauce. He usually finishes off with a moist peach tiramisu (£5.95).

Other dishes worth tasting include the soup of the day, which is always first class, the Sussex braised pork cheeks à la bourguignon served with mashed potatoes (£14.75) and always checkout what the special fish and meat dish of the day is - ask your waiter what’s on offer.

New Steine Bistro offers a daily special menu which costs £13.95 for two courses, and £15.95 for three courses from Sunday to Thursday and £17.95 for two courses and £19.95 for three courses on Friday and Saturday.

I love eating at New Steine Bistro - it’s like dining in your own front room with friends. The list of French wines is impressive and this Bistro and its owner, Herve Guyat, remains one of Brighton’s best kept secrets. New Steine Bistro is closed for annual holidays during most of August.

For the ‘ladies’ who lunch

There are few places to lunch in comfort outside on Brighton seafront. Legends provides some of the best sea views while offering top notch lunch choices every afternoon till 5pm, and the venue is very dog friendly.

Their summer menu includes some new dishes well worth checking out. Back Ribs in Smoked BBQ Sauce on the BBQ Street Style section are a must try - tender, delicious and a snatch at £8.95.

Deli Wraps are served in a warm deli-style wrap (or artisan white/brown bread) with salad leaves & chips (£7.95). Fillings include honey roast pork, smoked salmon, chicken tikka, confit duck, home cured salt beef and hummus and avocado, and are a meal in themselves.

If you choose anything from the Burger section be prepared to wait for up to 20 minutes as they're made completely from scratch. However, it’s well worth the wait and the Spiced Lamb Burger with coriander chutney is my favourite dish on the whole menu, worth every penny of £9.95 - it’s spectacular!

On a summer’s day you might want a salad - try the Lightly Smoked Salmon Teriyaki (£8.95), which comes with poached egg, cherry tomato, mixed leaves and a tasty teriyaki sauce.

Traditional favourites still on the menu include fish & chips (£9.95) and the all day breakfast (£8.95), which is served from 7.30am.

THREE JOLLY BUTCHERS

ALWAYS a cosy pub, SOMETIMES a sports pub

A friendly bar popular with football supporters to meet before and after home games at the Albion, where they serve seriously tasty Thai street food. You can eat inside or outside on the pavement and the venue is very dog friendly.

Starters are £4.50, mains, including rice, £7.50 - two courses for £9.90 and a Lunch Menu (until 4pm) at £5.95. There are also four mixed starters to share for £8.90, with loads of vegan, vegetarian and gluten free options available.

I tried the Tom Kha Soup with lemon grass, lime leaves and mushrooms in creamy coconut milk with a choice of chicken, prawn or vegan: vegetable or tofu (£4.50) - a delicious starter packed with produce and very filling. Highly recommended!

As is my favourite dish on the whole menu! BBQ pork spare ribs marinated in honey and ginger prepared Thai BBQ style (£4.50). The sauce is unique and will leave you wanting more. Try the Thai style prawn crackers with sweet chilli dip (£2) to accompany any of your courses.

For the main course I had stir-fried cashew nut with chicken (also available with prawn, pork beef or vegan: vegetable or tofu). Full of flavours with perfect flaky rice. Other main course options include a selection of curries, fried rice dishes, noodles and Thai salads - all in all great value for money.

Three Jolly Butchers is part of the group that owns the Camelford Arms, Paris House on Western Road and Boutique in West Street.

PRIDE

1. Disco runs through our veins, like Pride, like glitter. It’s the backbone of our days and the soundtrack to our nights. It’s the anthem of our community and the history of our dancefloors.

Since those early queer-fuelled nights filled with our black, Hispanic, gay, lesbian, bisexual and trans brothers and sisters, disco has delivered the dazzling beats for our revolution. There would be no uprising as sound as ours without those glittering darlings, no soundtrack to our nights. It’s the like Pride, like glitter. It’s the history of our dancefloors.

2. Catch Wildblood and Queenie throughout Brighton Pride 2019 on 1btn.fm and at Patterns Terrace Party, Diva Dance Tent, PVP, Bitch, Please! at Tempest, and the legendary Sunday Sundae Pride Reunion at Patterns.

Disco runs through our veins, for disco is our life. Our life at Pride when we come together as a community to celebrate, commentate and campaign. Where every last dance is for those who came before us, every moment of disco heat for them. This Brighton Pride we salute the sound that made our LGBT+ nightclubs the connection that kept us safe and sane, through crisis, through persecution, through loss and through life. This is for every Handsome Man, every Miss Honey, every disco Boss, and every Love Sensation who came dancing with us. Happy Pride Everyone.

DJ PROFILE: DJ ALPHA

Just in case you missed the memo, there’s a little celebration happening at the beginning of August in Brighton & Hove! So, whilst you polish up your flags, iron your sequined hot pants, get set to be prouder than proud and be prepared to dance like everyone is watching. And who better to do that to than the glorious DJ Alpha…

How are you? I’m doing really well - still recovering from an EPIC night DJing at FEST Camden for London Pride… It was one of the best events I’ve been to in a long time.

Where are you DJing over Pride? You can catch me at: The Women’s Diva Dance Tent @ Present Park, Sat 3rd (time TBC); Brighton Pride Closing Party @ OHSO Social on Sun 4th (time TBC); and Sunday Service @ The Tempest Inn, Sun 4th at 11pm–12.30am.

What are your plans for the big weekend? This is one of my busiest weekends of the year and it’s very unusual for me to get out from behind so I’ve planned some musical surprises and thrills for everyone.

What tune will you HAVE to play and what’s your fave Pride tune ever? My favourite Pride tune has got to be Sunset to Sunrise by Whelan and Di Scala, and Andrea Laddo’s Sassobasso (The Cube Guys Remix) is the tune I’ll definitely be playing this year!

What are you looking forward to most about Pride? Since starting a family Pride means much more to me, especially with all that’s going on in the world! It’s vital that we continue to fight for equal rights for ourselves and for our children. I’m looking forward to being part of the march and showing the world that Love Is Love, no matter in what form!

Have you sorted out your outfits yet? I wish! Usually I’m really prepared, like months in advance, but I move house the week before Pride so I’m having to leave everything to the last minute… eeeekkkk!

Fave Pride memory? Oh god, there are so many! I’ll have to say though that DJing the Women’s Dance Tent in 2016 was an incredible experience. The tent was massive and there were thousands of people singing and dancing along to my set. The energy was insurmountable!

Pride aside, do you have any other exciting projects going on at the moment and where else can we see you play? After Pride I plan to take a few weeks off and go on my travels to Ibiza.

Guilty pleasure? Digestive biscuits topped with Bovril and peanut butter… nom!

COME BACK TO THE FIVE AND DIME JIMMY DEAN, JIMMY DEAN (Eureka blu-ray). Robert Altman directed this filmed play set in a Texas ghost town in the 1950s and the 1970s. A group of James Dean fans, including Cher, Kathy Bates and Sandy Dennis, meet up for the 20 year anniversary of their idol’s death. They’re joined by mysterious stranger Karen Black who appears to be vaguely familiar… Secrets are revealed, lies exposed and there’s a lot of mirthless laughter with some of the later scenes seemingly filmed amongst inmates of an asylum. The performances are great, especially Dennis as the woman who believes herself the mother of Dean’s semi-messiah son. The lacklustre transfer is both soft and grainy but that’s almost certainly due to limitations of the original 16mm stock.

Far Afield, the Brighton-based contemporary British men’s wear business, has launched an exclusive limited edition Pride T-shirt (£30 from Thread Menswear, 9 Dukes Lane, Brighton BN1 1BG or www.farafield.uk) to commemorate 50 years of proud action following the Stonewall riots in New York and to celebrate Pride in Brighton & Hove, 2019. Far Afield will donate 50% of the proceeds of each unit sold to the Brighton Rainbow Fund, who give grants to local LGBT+/HIV organisations that deliver effective frontline services to LGBT+ people in the city.

THE BRIGHTON BIRDCAGE

The Brighton Birdcage is a breathtakingly fabulous boutique shop aimed at the drag, trans and cross-dresser communities. Eric Page catches up with (co-director) Nick Jordan to talk shop.

How does a bespoke boutique help nervous shoppers?
“For the first time you can come into a shop and feel safe trying on clothing and not be judged, you can put on a dress, heels and a wig and walk up and down the shop without other shoppers looking. I’ve seen people turned away from dressing rooms in the past, because of their assumed gender, or the ‘wrong’ clothes they wanted to try... we live in a more tolerant society but we still have a long way to go.”

You offer a discreet service for not so fierce or bold customers to explore...
“We do, you can either make an appointment or pop in and have a chat, we can advise you on a few things or try anything on, with no pressure what so ever. We have a lower level in the shop which is private and discreet. It’s very important that our customers trust us and feel safe.”

How long have you been involved in the world of transformative clothing?
“This is new for me, I’ve had to learn a lot. There’s much more to this world than people realise. When we were setting up we spoke to a broad spectrum of trans people to learn how they like things and what they would like to see in a shop like ours.”

What do you offer to the trans communities?
“We offer similar products to the trans community as to the drag customer, but with a difference: we cater for both but we have body shaping, daywear, and more natural wigs as well as excellent make-up and jewellery.”

Does it make a difference to the customer being able to try clothes before buying?
“Customers love a place where they can come and try things before they buy. We all have bought off the internet and when it arrives it’s too small, too large! Here you can see what works for you, get things right.”

How does your experience influence the help and advice you offer?
“Because we know what it’s like to wear these outfits, shoes etc, but also wigs and make-up and how to get the best out of the products. It’s not just about slapping a dress on and painting your face - it takes work and we like to help everyone to get the maximum results.”

Most exquisite thing you’ve ever worn?
“Unlike my partner I don’t dress, but I have a favourite leather jacket from Nico Didonna, it’s a one off and I love it...”

Who inspires you? “In life, my partner Wain.”

Why ‘Brighton Birdcage’?
“From the film The Birdcage starring Robin Williams, which is based on the book/musical La Cage Aux Folles and is about relationships and life in the world of drag.”

How has drag and transformative glamour dressing changed in the last decade?
“Hugely, from the RuPaul phenomena and the performers coming through. There’s many more trans models and personalities now in the media. It’s more acceptable and our aim is to make a relaxed place to try our styles. With so much media coverage, everyone loves the drag world and it’s mainstream, many people from all walks of life want to do drag or try it. We offer a place where people can come and discover themselves and not be afraid of people staring and pointing, a safe haven for everyone.”

Apart from the stunning outfits and fully styled wigs what else do you stock?
“We’re a one stop shop, covering everything from wigs to heels and everything in between. We have jewellery, make-up, shoes and body shaping, eyelashes, tights, underwear, sunglasses and we’re always looking for more to add to our range. We’re also the only retail outlet in Brighton to stock Kryolan make-up, loved and used by make-up artists worldwide.”

Your windows are WOW! Simple, theatrical and show stopping!
“Thanks! We’re one of a kind and the comments
we hear outside the shop are incredible. Our theatre background has influenced us, we’re committed to being a classy place to visit and the windows need to reflect that, theatrical but full on class and style. I love walking by in the evenings and seeing the lights on in the window, I’m so proud I can’t help smiling.”

You’ve got some seriously fierce items in the shop, but nothing that will break the bank. “We want our customers to come back knowing that they can afford to get a new outfit at a good price. Make the prices too high then no one comes... We all have a budget and our prices reflect that. There’s something for everyone no matter your budget.”

Most glamorous member of your family? “Well of course, my mum. Barbara Walter was my theatrical mum, one of the campest people ever and wouldn’t even answer the phone without a full face of make-up; she would love the shop and the reason behind it.”

What would your grandmother have thought about the shop? “Interesting question, I think my nan would have loved to have a look around, even if she wasn’t 100% sure who it was aimed at.”

Why the North Laines? “We wanted a part of Brighton that was easy to get to from the train station. It’s an amazing community, very diverse but the location is also discreet, perfect for us. Wain was performing here and fell in love with the place; I visited and did the same, so we moved. There’s nothing like the Birdcage here or in the UK. It seemed an obvious choice to set up here!”

Do you work with any local LGBT+ charities? “We’re involved with the LGBT+ Safety Forum. We want to help the community that has given so much to us in the short time we have lived here and we feel a part of something special. It’s just so nice to be able to give something back.”

Any advice for someone who longs to look fabulous and unique? “Take a trip to the Brighton Birdcage!”

What’s your favourite joke? “It’s not necessarily my favourite joke but one I heard the other day: A man said to his partner ‘Everybody hates me’, ‘Don’t be so ridiculous’ replied his partner ‘not everybody knows you.’”

HOLD ON, PAIN ENDS
The necessity of hope by Craig Hanlon-Smith

The HOPE Charity Project aims to be a support and therapeutic opportunity for families and individuals struggling to manage the complexities around mental health challenges and their impact upon all those involved. They are thrilled to have been chosen as the main charity to receive support from Worthing Pride this year. With a young person focus, and as failing mental health disproportionately affecting LGBT+ youth, HOPE seems a fitting partner for this growing Pride event.

The HOPE Charity Project evolved from personal experience by its founder Claire Sparrow. Unable to access any help, support or have anywhere to turn during Claire’s own family’s cry for help, she felt that something was desperately needed for them and all the other thousands of families going through a similar experience, and so the project was born.

“The standards and lack of sufficiently trained agency staff in these units were a cause for the condition to worsen rather than improve. Eight months of our child being in hospital was more like watching her in a prison. Twelve years old, severely depressed, away from her family, subjected to additional traumatic experiences she should never have had to see or go through. All because there wasn’t anywhere for us to get the help and support when she originally needed it.”

It was during this traumatic experience that they as a family became aware of just how many families are struggling behind closed doors with nowhere to turn. Complex mental health cases in young people as young as eight are rising dramatically. Anxiety, panic attacks, self-harm, depression, eating disorders, gender/body dysphoria to name a few. These can in turn lead to withdrawal, violent outbursts, school refusal, disruption at home, breakdowns, and all too regularly, suicide or in Claire’s daughter’s case attempted suicide. “There wasn’t a place to go that had the therapeutic nurturing impact that’s needed for this serious area of health for our adolescent generation. So we created one.”

The HOPE Charity Project provides a space where those that need to be heard can get some support and have somewhere to go to meet others that understand and will care. The HOPE Charity Project converted a donated shipping container into a support and therapy centre, constructed from donated and recycled materials and the kindness of skilled tradesmen helping out for free. They connect families in the local community with each other so they know they aren’t alone and not the only ones struggling with these worries. They work with one another to provide emotional support. “The HOPE Charity Project is the place where these young people can come to meet others with similar worries, fears, sadness, frustration. They too can realise they aren’t alone and won’t be judged, rejected or ignored. Early Intervention and Prevention is our aim...”

The HOPE Charity Project is run by families and the professionals that want to make a difference to help as many as they can and quickly. The need for such initiatives to provide such services to the UK public has never been greater.

“We’re always looking out for venues and rural areas for us to be able to expand our services/facilities, to enable us to help more young people and their families covering a greater area. If you could help or would like to get onboard, involved in any way, we would love to hear from you. We need your help and support to keep this going”.

SKUNK ANANSIE
The Dome, New Road, Brighton, Box office: 01273 709709

SKUNK ANANSIE (Mon 26). Celebrating 25 years in the industry: “Skunk Anansie were born radical and have stayed that way ever since. It’s there in their music, which slips effortlessly between the confrontational and the tender, the politically charged and the nakedly emotional, the upfront and attention-grabbing and the quiet and restrained.”

DAVID HOYLE & FRIENDS: THE PRIDE AT THE END OF THE WORLD (Thur 1). Start your Brighton Pride with David Hoyle, the anarchic high priest of anti-drag and fireball of the cabaret apocalypse, avantgardian, all singing, all raging wonder. Post-drag, post-gender and impossible to beat – David is the original performance avalanche. Featuring a stellar lineup of cabaret wunderkind: Ebony Rose Dark, Rhysyss Pieces, Chiron Stamp and Kit Collier Wood. “He is raw, sometimes a bit frightening, but also thrilling in his look-no-hands recklessness.” (The Guardian);
ALL THAT JAZZ
BY SIMON ADAMS

1. GIOVANNI GUIDI Avec Le Temps (ECM). For no particularly reason, other than what I’ve been listening to recently, this month’s column is devoted to pianists. First up is Italian pianist Giovanni Guidi, here fronting a quintet on his fourth ECM outing. Guidi’s is a quiet voice, rarely raising his music above a whisper, yet he allows saxophonist Francesco Bearzatti considerable freedom to move into explorations of pure sound. Drummer João Lobo is subtlety itself, although not afraid to explore the full sonic potential of his drum kit, while bassist Thomas Morgan is resonantly superb. This set works as well as it does because it presents an intriguing contrast between collective quietism and individual free expression, the often-haunting themes supporting solos that open out in unexpected and sometimes raucous ways. For its combination of the beautiful and the harsh, the traditional and adventurous, it cannot be bettered.

2. AHMAD JAMAL TRIO Complete Live at the Spotlite Club 1958 (Essential Jazz Classics). American pianist Ahmad Jamal was apparently Miles Davis’s favourite piano player, although they never actually recorded together, but it is easy to see why the ever-cool Miles so favoured Jamal’s understated, light-touch fingering, his dramatic use of space, and his superb sense of swing and rhythm. Jamal, who at 89 is still alive and recording today, recorded a series of fine studio and live sets during the 1950s, of which this 2xCD club set from the Spotlite Club in Washington DC is one of the best. With a trio of Israel Crosby on bass and Vernell Fournier on drums, Jamal tackles 27 songs, playing such standards as Autumn Leaves and Stompin’ At The Savoy as well as his own Ahmad’s Blues. Since this is a club set, you can hear glasses clinking in the background and cash registers ringing in the takings, but that is to be expected, and enjoyed.

3. FRED HERSCH & THE WDR BIG BAND Begin Again (Palmetto). I suppose it is still every jazz musician’s dream to front a big band, especially one as fine as the current Cologne-based WDR ensemble. American pianist Fred Hersch has always been a man with dreams, and he obviously enjoyed his big band experience immensely. All the nine tracks on this set were written by Hersch, their arrangements and conducting held in the more than capable hands of Vince Mendoza. The serried ranks of 13 saxophones, trombones and trumpets sumptuously cushion the arrangements, although I found some of their charts a tad traditional, but they do allow plenty of space for Hersch’s and others’ vital solo contributions. Best track by far is The Big Easy, with its evocative New Orleans flavour enhanced by a fine gutbucket trombone solo from Ludwig Nuss. As a big band outing, it is true to say that this set could have been recorded at any time in the last 50 years, but then some good things just don’t age.

ART MATTERS
BY ENZO MARRA

This month I’m very happy to be able to introduce you to four exhibitions I’m taking part in, two a train away and two a plane away.

ROYAL ACADEMY
www.royalacademy.org.uk

1. I’ve had a painting selected for the ROYAL ACADEMY SUMMER EXHIBITION (until Aug 12). There is an entry fee, but I’m sure it will be worth it with the plethora of works awaiting you there. Run since 1769, the Summer Exhibition is the world’s largest open submission art show, and brings together art in all mediums, including prints and paintings, film, photography, sculpture, architectural works by leading artists, Royal Academicians and household names, as well as new and emerging talent. This year, acclaimed British painter Jock McFadyen RA took over from Grayson Perry to co-ordinate the 251st Summer Exhibition. Over 1,500 works are on display, including an animal-themed ‘menagerie’ in the Central Hall, with works by artists including Charles Avery, Banksy and Mat Collishaw. Other artists include Jeremy Deller, Marcus Harvey, Tracey Emin RA, Frank Bowling RA, Antony Gormley RA and Honorary Academicians Anselm Kiefer, James Turrell and Wim Wenders. Outside the galleries, international artist Thomas Huseago has taken over the RA courtyard with a group of large-scale sculptures. Most of the artwork is for sale including mine, with proceeds helping to fund the next generation of artists in the RA Schools.

PS MIRABEL GALLERY
Manchester, www.psmirabel.co.uk

1. I’ve been selected for PAINT (until Aug 3). The judges were Ian Hartshorne from the Manchester School of Art, David Hancock from Paper Gallery, and Graham Lister from the Glasgow School of Art. There is a first prize of £200 and a solo show in 2020. If you are in the area, I hope you’ll be tempted to find the gallery and have a look inside.

GALERIE LA VIELLE POSTE
Old Post Office Gallery and former Mairie (Town Hall), Laroque, France www.galerielavieilleposte.org

1. Slightly further afield in France, I’m exhibiting some paintings at the LARROQUE ART FEST 2019 (until Aug 3). A mixture of contemporary work in all mediums, spanning painting, sculpture, film and video, sound, installations, photography and net-art. The idea is to introduce a rural environment to international contemporary artists and vice versa, as well as to encourage artistic inspiration and cultural exchanges. The artists presenting their work originate from France, Cyprus, Mexico, Armenia, America, Brazil, Spain, Germany, Portugal, Ireland, Bulgaria, Hong Kong and the UK.

ANGELA FLOWERS (IRELAND) INC
Rossscarbery, County Cork, Ireland

1. If you happen to be passing through the area, I’m one of the 12 artists showing watercolours in WASH 2 (Aug 11–25). The exhibition has been curated by Francesca Flowers and Charles Williams, and includes works by UK and Irish artists.

opening flourish, which unleashes an almost unruly cascade of ideas. Running scales leads to a rhapsodic set of variations. The capricious finale bursts through, propelled forward to the very end. In the Scherzo with its frantic running scales leads to a rhapsodic set of variations. The capricious finale bursts through, propelled forward to the very end. Bavouzet makes sense of the somewhat rambling form, bringing together into a coherent arc the disparate ideas, without allowing any of the frequent dramatic outbursts to upset the overall trajectory.

The Fantasiestücke are darker, with surging C minor waves in the first, and the outwardly heavy march of the third disguising its more confident, assertive and sometimes agitated music.

The selection chosen here to a whirling presto finish. A great showpiece, and Crozman delivers its technical demands with ease. Somewhat unexpected as a finale to the disc is the movement for cello and piano from Messiaen's (1908-1992) Quatuor Pour La Fin Du Temps (Quartet for the end of Time), composed and premiered (with Messiaen on the piano) in a concentration camp in 1941. Louange à L'Éternité De Jésus has a longing, desolate cello melody, and Crozman's plaintive tone, over Chiu's soft yet ever present chords, dying away peacefully to nothing at the end makes for a poignant end to this impressive disc.

The sound gets a little rustic in the lively final Presto, which might be polished up in a studio recording, but admirably communicates the spirit of the live performance. They precede the Septet with an Introduction, Theme and Variations for clarinet and string quartet, attributed to Carl Maria von Weber, but in fact now thought to be by Joseph Küffner (1776-1856). This is a beautifully summery work, with a bright joyful theme for the clarinet over a rippling, light string accompaniment. The variations ratchet up the virtuosity for the clarinet, and the pace quickens for the final dash to the conclusion. Johnson is bright and agile throughout here.

They end with two 'bonbons'—Johnson's own arrangements for all eight players of Frühlingsstimmen and Perpetuum Mobile, by Johann Strauss II. The former is a piece of fun, the waltz tunes performed with warmth and gusto, and then Johnson's arrangement of the latter passes the interest around the players, including delightful exchanges between the clarinet and bassoon, and then violin and double bass. A crowd-pleasing conclusion to their concert, no doubt, and to this delightful disc too.

Cinema

Mozart's Die Zauberflöte (The Magic Flute) is showing live from Glyndebourne (5.30pm, Sun 4), starring Sofia Fomina, Björn Bürger and Caroline Watergreen. In a range of local cinemas, including: Duke's at Komedia, Brighton, Cineworld Eastbourne, Lewes Depot, the Ritz Digital & Connaught Cinema, Worthing and the Picture House, Uckfield. Check for times.
Having started so young, did you feel ready to work, including dementia and mental health work here is so important.”

Last year’s production of the marvellous Mike Bartlett play Cock raised some eyebrows among stalwart theatre-goers.

“They couldn’t bring themselves even to mention its title, but a new audience from the university came to see it. I want to make the theatre a place for everyone. This theatre was built by the community for the community. And some people have been attending for 50 years. There is of course a rich theatrical heritage here and when the Queen visited recently she recalled seeing the great actor in Uncle Vanya - there’s still an Olivier inheritance here.”

How does the year-long programme get put together?

“There’s always got to be a balance amongst the different audiences and different times of year. I’m constantly having discussions with directors and actors about their ideas of what we should do. Pieces float together. Sometimes things can’t fit in and I like to surprise people too.”

You’ve directed as many plays as musicals, but musical theatre really attracts you.

“There’s something about the release you get from singing - it’s different from acting. That’s true of directing too.”

As we speak you’re hot foot from directing the musical A Light in the Piazza with opera legend Renee Fleming, how was that?

“I’ve never known dedication like it. She knew all the dialogue and songs on day one. She’s very happy to take notes and is a brilliant company leader. The show will go later in the year to Los Angeles and Chicago.”

Would you like to act again?

“Yes, but nothing is shouting at me - more Shakespeare and more Sondheim, but I’m a bit young for most of his parts.”

A new initiative at Chichester is the introduction of a 50/50 gender balance.

“We’re holding the mirror up to nature as Shakespeare said so we should reflect the world as it is. As a gay man I know how important equality is.”

Do you get involved with all the productions once they are running?

“Yes I wouldn’t be afraid to.”

Would you give Sir Richard notes if necessary? “Yes, I wouldn’t be afraid to.”

What advice would you give a young Daniel?

“Not to be worried if people don’t always like what you do. Have faith in what you are doing.”

Daniel’s certainly showing that in his highly successful tenure at Chichester.
I write this in the approach to Pride in London 2019, wonderfully entitled: ‘Pride Jubilee – 50 Years of Queer Revolt’. The term queer has made something of a celebratory comeback in recent years and appears to be the go-to self-descriptor for all those who perhaps feel they aren’t fitting increasingly conservative LGBT moulds. It wasn’t always like that. We were all just Queer.

In 1987, on a family trip to London, I remember sitting in The Stockpot, Haymarket carefully navigating my way through a watery and therefore understandably cheap spaghetti bolognese. The Stockpot was a London institution so popular that customers would find themselves unceremoniously stuffed onto a bench at a table with at least three strangers none of whom had previously met as recently as onesmarting gulp of wine ago.

At the table across from our excitable family group I was transfixed by two gentlemen who clearly knew one another exceedingly well. There was nothing in the way of what the 1980s swimming pool attendants would call ‘heavy petting’, but a familiarity with one another which led to their adjusting his and his collars and winter scarves. There was a theatricality to their camp hand gestures and, superficially, they were dressed in that well-bred public-school attire made fashionable by Rupert Everett and Colin Firth in the 1984 film Another Country. They talked and touched and fusssed and sometimes screeched and I was transfixed by them. By their beautiful skin, foopy Timotei-blond hair, and by their seemingly open ability to be Queer.

By contrast their table partner, an elegant and immaculately dressed woman some 30 years their senior, managed to ignore them completely by continuously reading the limited menu as though it were a Barbara Cartland novel, with facial expressions as dramatic as a Cartland cliff-hanger. Presumably corned beef hash held the same dramatic interest as a swashbuckling cad on horseback.

Soon enough the gentlemen friends paid their bill and mere seconds after they swished off to no doubt a champagne reception awash with University scarves, they were replaced by two women of a similar disposition to the one remaining diner who dramatically pushed her enthralling menu novel to one side and gripped the table with both hands as if rescuing herself from an immediate sinkhole. “Thank goodness,” she sighed, exhaustingly relieved at the sight of her new dinner guests. “I have for 30 minutes endured two queers at this table both of whom were making me feel quite sick.”

Although they were many worlds away from who I was at that time, I knew in that moment that I had more in common with those camel-coat wearing ‘queers’ than anyone else in my company. I also knew that my own secret was to be exposed I would have turned many a stomach in that eatery too. Thirty years ago, Queers, Gays, Homos, Poofs were at best a figure of fun at worst inflicting sexual deviancy and death upon the unsuspecting innocent normal folk.

When I think back to those gentlemen now, who must have been 25 years old, I wonder if they’re still alive. Not only were they contending with unsettling the conservative majority in a bargain basement café but gay men at that time were living with the fear and stigma of an HIV epidemic; it must have been terrifying. Perhaps they were ill themselves but didn’t know. I hope they’ve lived to tell the tale and are gleefully ripping up middle age with a spring in their step-ball-change. Today I had lunch with a long-standing friend of mine who, in 1987, would have been around the same age as the gentlemen in our story above. Within five years his partner would die from AIDS related infections and he would himself be diagnosed as HIV+. In the early 1990s, and early on in our friendship, he would narrowly escape death himself, twice. He would not only survive but live long enough for a revolution in pharmaceutical medicine and the availability of antiretroviral drugs which have saved the lives of millions. In 2019 he is living a healthy life with a strong CD4 count and an undetectable viral load which means he can’t pass the HIV virus on.

Requiring a routine operation unrelated to any previous condition, he would be directed to a local private clinic which commissions NHS services. He will be seen by the consultant and a surgery appointment agreed. He would then be refused surgery following advice from the consultant anaesthetist: “We won’t operate on you because your immune system is compromised.” The immune system is not compromised, the CD4 count is healthy and the viral load undetectable. “It is our policy. We will refer you back to your GP and you will be redirected to an NHS hospital.” Hospitals in the UK who have commissioned NHS services at the instruction of our Government are refusing to treat HIV+ people in 2019.

So more than 30 years on from our Haymarket Queers inflicting a feeling of nausea upon an unsuspecting conservative majority, what has really changed?

We’re about to give the keys to Number 10 Downing Street to one of the following: a man who has discretely begun to dismantle the health service right under our noses. A health service which refuses to treat an HIV+ man who has spent his life paying into it. Alternatively, and most likely, to a man who refers to Queer men as ‘bum-boys’ and likens same-sex marriage to that of marrying a dog. Our shops and services are adorned with rainbows and we can buy LGBTQ+ flavoured produce from shampoo to vodka to soft furnishings, and yet, between 2013 and 2018, LGBTQ+ hate crimes in England and Wales have risen by a whopping 114%

The commercialisation of Pride is in someway inevitable. Any popular event, or dare I say product, is monopolised and cheaper versions flogged for a fiver on the local market. But at a time when there are campaigns to keep children out of primary schools in case they’re exposed to LGBTQ+ positive messaging, I’m pleased those people have to walk down a high street adorned with rainbow flags and pro-pride messaging. But it isn’t enough.

Enjoy Kylie, and whoever else, but remember that the first Pride was a riot and the first brick thrown for very good reason. Those reasons haven’t left us. For a number of years they were hiding but increasingly they are back to put us into our place. It has never been more important to bring out your queer, and revolt.

HAPPY PRIDE!

Folk that I speak to talk a lot about how much Pride has changed over the years. It used to be a ‘community’ event, where stalls for non-profit support groups vastly outweighed the burger bars and beer tents. However, when I think about the way our world has changed, Pride really hasn’t changed much at all, or has changed for the better.

It’s true that in the late 1980s, when I began attending Pride events, there was lots more non-profit visibility from all over the country. But back then we didn’t have the internet as a resource. Nowadays a support group has a website, Facebook, Instagram, and Twitter pages as standard. The group is accessible from all over the world. Heck, my favourite radio station is JOY 94.9 out of Melbourne; it’s where I get much of my international LGBT+ news - and some great music!

In the early years Pride seldom broke even, in fact many times was bankrupt. Now, Pride in Brighton raises thousands of pounds for the Rainbow Fund, which makes a huge difference across the region. And this year Kylie Minogue is headlining - where else can you get a day festival ticket for under £40 and be able to see someone of her calibre perform? So yes, Pride is no longer a backwater retreat in a hostile world; it’s now a mainstream retreat in a hostile world. And in its own way, it is still changing the world.

“Pride raises thousands of pounds for the Rainbow Fund which makes a huge difference across the region. And this year Kylie is headlining - where else can you get a day festival ticket under £40 to see someone of her calibre?”

Many groups will still have stalls so you can meet the volunteers personally. The Village MCC will be providing Jesus Deck card readings for those who want to explore their spiritual journey in more depth, and offering temporary tattoos – always lots of fun! Lunch Positive will be offering great food; many of the LGBTQ+ choirs will be there so you can meet them too. And of course, besides the non-profit groups, there are always the wonderful speciality vendors. Last year my husband bought me a pair of crochet braces, handmade by a very talented (and cute) bear cub.

At the Village MCC we also celebrate Pride weekend, and this year our guest speaker on August 4 is Councillor Alexandra Phillips, the current Mayor of Brighton & Hove. Alex is also our MEP now, but she’ll be talking about Pride in her role as the Mayor - complete with bling! Did you know that she’s Brighton’s youngest ever Mayor? And a wonderfully warm and affirming person to talk with.

Pride is a wonderful event, and is changing year on year just as the world changes year on year. With more rainbows than a fluffy of unicorns, it’s still a reminder that we have reason to be proud of who we are. Not that we’re better than anyone else, but that nobody has the right to make us feel ashamed of who we are. Whether transgender or non-binary, lesbian or gay, bisexual or straight, we are who God made us. To say that we should be ashamed of who we are is to say that God should be ashamed of what God chooses to create. God isn’t ashamed, God is proud! As we should be. Happy Pride!

IS ‘FITTING IN’ MAKING YOU SICK?

The Brighton Faeries are officially marching in this year’s Pride Parade. Yep we booked ourselves a ‘walking float’ slot for up to 30 marching Faeries! This is a controversial move because, as everyone knows, the Faeries are very elusive creatures. You might catch a glimpse of one and then, Pouff, gone, never to be seen again…

The Faerie ‘development of consciousness’ grew from the US counter culture and gay civil rights movements of the late 1960s. Within 10 years of the Stonewall riots, a call went out to convene ‘gay brothers’ to a Spiritual Conference of Radical Faeries. Those interested in ‘re-establishing a communication with Nature and the Great Mother and, in feeling the essential link between sex and the forces that hold the universe together’ were invited to come together (literally) for a long weekend in early September 1979.

Since then Queer Folk from across the spectra of gender and sexuality have been hearing the call to convene in Nature and to celebrate the awesome naturalness of their sexual and gender queerness. Faerie Gatherings are about queers co-creating foundational intentional community - nurturing and celebrating our ancient historical roles as medicine people, healers, prophets, shamans, witches and sorcerers. We encourage ourselves to engage with that endless and fathomless process of coming out as Queer, as animals, as humans AND as mysterious and powerful spirits that move through the life cycle of the cosmos…

The tradition of Faerie-ness has been counter to the cultural pressure from the mainstream to assimilate; to resist the lure of acceptance ‘as long as you can just stop being THAT WAY’. Faeries drill down into what it feels like (and what it means) to be ‘THAT WAY’. As Faeries we endeavour to be more ‘THAT WAY’ than we ever were before!

Faerie-ness resists ‘fitting in’. It proudly and queerly presents itself as a challenge to the status quo; as an opportunity to bring to consciousness those forces which endeavour to obliterate different-ness. So, what are the Faeries doing in a Pride Parade with its corporate drive to have the queers put on a show, draw the crowds and bring millions in capital to boost the Brighton business economy? The irony of a non-political parade celebrating 50 years of queer civil rights activism would be funny if it weren’t so creepy.

Well, Faerie-ness has been a little known and barely recognised force empowering queers, over the years to refuse to fit into an inauthenticity-glorifying world. If you’re reading this before the Parade, look out for us. We’ll simply be turning up in all our non-corporate weird uniqueness and representing that awkward voice asking: ‘Is this all there is?’

If any of all this chimes with you then find the Faerie Camp @ Queer Spirit Summer Festival in Northamptonshire from August 14-18 or just Google Albion Faeries and see what it’s like to co-create spiritually nurturing community together at a Gathering.
What happened to gay? What’s with all this acceptance? Over 50 cities across the globe are celebrating Global Pride this year. Because it’s 50 years since a certain lesbian was arrested, looked a drag queen in the face and asked if they were finally going to do anything about it. It’s 50 long years since a drag queen threw a size 10 stiletto into the face of a cop. It’s 50 years since the fight began. Now, even Donald Trump turns a blind eye when he appoints his Satan daughter and her facedead husband as Queer ambassadors (before he became more interested in moving embassies across Israel and lost interest). Even Vlad Putin has bigger fists to fly now. Remember when the only shocking news coming out of Russia was the beating of trans women in Pushkin Square outside Russia’s first ever fast-food takeaway?

Perhaps more interesting was the recent rant in Barcelona from some heteroconflicted nincompoop about ‘beating the gay’ out of someone. Complaining about a young gayer wearing a pair of daisy-dukes at the Ramblas McDonalds during Spanish Pride. (The Ramblas for lord’s sake. It’s gay/trans sacred ground, is it not? Well not in Maccy D’s). Go take a look at the video and at the ineffectual security guard as the brain-turded a-hole shouts that there are children present and that cut-offs just aren’t de rigueur within the realm of certain Scottish fast-food outlets. In front of his own children, he says he will hit him so hard, he will ‘beat the gay out of you’. Nice. I don’t eat this food myself but I’m sure shamed by my working class global culture and not just by feeding Unhappy Meals to the kiddies.

At one end there is the religious right, then the religious poor, then the good honest fathers who don’t want their offspring ‘exposed’ to anything gay lest they become ‘tainted’. (Like they won’t be by sugar-coated French fries). It becomes clear that here we have three men, two straight, one gay and there is somehow an ‘altercation’. Sound familiar? Here’s the news. Fifteen percent will become ‘tainted’ before they’re born. You’ve got to live with that one, Steve. I know, it’s not easy but here I go tying the non-cisgender fluid with under educated caucasians, high caliber instant foodstuffs, Southern State American xenophobia and African post-colonial non progressive cultures. Jesus tonight.

Lest we forget the land of the free that in these times of ‘populism’ (a name grab by the right. Meaning that anyone with a brain is by definition ‘unpopular’. In the same way that anyone who thinks abortion is a woman’s right to choose takes on an opposite and nasty moniker of ‘anti-life’ instead of ‘pro-life’). It might appear that the further we get away from the doctrines about some god or other, the more we move towards inclusion of all things including queerness.

Perhaps it really is ‘education’ in the end (that’s what the missionaries thought too). Now, think of Uganda and other African countries ‘civilised’ with some version of that exclusively white doctrine: Christianity. Then look to the most homophobic states in the land of the free: the south, the Alabamas and the Mississippiss. Then look at the bands of homophobia and how it compresses itself onto power and slavery and blackness and all-around general racism, colonising oppression and dogma. Regarding Africa, academics usually point out South Africa in this argument here because it’s apparently more ‘progressive’. I’m not saying that apartheid was ever homo-blind, but that the fight in South Africa was political, not ideological or religious. It’s those nations nearer the equator that give us pause. The Ugandas and the Mauritianias, the Sudans, the Nigerias - the Christian colonies. The American south. Places where the battle is both religious and ideological. Places that are still 10% Queer.

I say this because Pride is much more than gay or marching up a street with a banner. Global pride is also about global responsibility. A lesbian and a drag queen took a similar responsibility in 1969. And we do responsibility very well. Remember getting our best clothes all mucked-up as we lay down on the street every other minute during the early AIDS marches?

Two years ago I found myself doing the same at New York Pride in support of the Pulse nightclub massacre. The deadliest terrorist attack in the US since 9/11. On the floor we went on top of one another. Of course then we were convinced that Hillary was going to be elected. Because we all knew through secret sources that her administration intended to kill off the gun lobby. Unfortunately the gun lobby won the election via Putin’s puttana, Donny Trump. Getting rid of guns would have been a great legacy for Hillary and the gays - taking responsibility for everyone else who has access to guns.

Pride is every colour of the rainbow and more. It’s become shades of everything. And if you ever catch yourself saying that Pride is becoming too commercial remember the resonances it has, and not just for one community. It has to get bigger and bigger to kill off the recently legitimised hatred by the global economic superpowers. We have to be the first community to throw a stiletto when we see anyone else being thrown head-first into a meat wagon. We all have to be that sole lesbian who has taken enough and looks to us all for support. And we all have to follow because, even though it may look like Pride marches have taken over the world, we have only become larger because of the growing forces of opposition to global democracies.

So, stand tall, be safe and take pride in all you have become.

“Pride is every colour of the rainbow and more. It’s become shades of everything. And if you ever catch yourself saying that Pride is becoming too commercial remember the resonances it has, and not just for one community”
Right. I’ve been entrusted with a column. This seems grown up and responsible. But I’m writing it. So perhaps not quite so grown up and responsible. Once I knew this was going to be happening, there were questions I needed to ask myself. What would the column be about? How do I present myself? Will it be personal? I’ve answered these questions as follows... Stuff. Laid back. Kinda.

I’ll clarify things. I’m Jon, Brighton born and bred and a member of Brighton Gay Men’s Chorus. Not that that has anything to do with the column but I thought it best to present my ‘Gay Society Credentials’. I’ve been writing stuff since I was 16 and have been doing creative things since first choreographing some dance routines for a group of five-year-olds in a church hall in Balfour Road. Like you do. I write stuff for the Chorus and things for my blog.

I’m writing this in a mildly trendy coffee shop in Hove. I know it’s trendy because there are filament bulbs in the window and I can see three laptops open in front of people working away as they sip their mochafrappowhatsits. There’s some ladies who lunch tucking into something sourdoughy. There’s parsley sprinkled on their fried eggs. It’s that sort of place. I have a pot of tea. And normal tea mind. None of this ‘infusion’ nonsense. I’ve seen tea that had beetroot in it. How we’ve reached the point where drinking hot beetroot juice is a thing I’m not sure. I’ve treated myself to a piece of cake. This is the sort of typical ‘Life on the Edge’ behaviour you can expect from me.

So, what to scribble about? There’s Pride obviously. I didn’t do the park last year. There’s only so much standing around with a plastic beer glass you can do. Am doing the park this year cause, well, Kylie. I’m hoping for a modern take on her classic Word Is Out but suspect I’m in a minority there. There’s the usual hoo hah about Pride: “It’s too corporate”; “Why aren’t certain corporations supporting it?”; “It’s not the same”; “It’s all the same”; “It’s too commercialised” and so on.

I’m kinda relaxed about the whole thing. As a Chorus we have a float in the parade which is the best part of the day, then a moseh around the park, check the cabaret tent, head home. With beer and food. The Sunday is a chilled day chatting with mates outside pubs. And that’s Pride for me. I don’t take it too seriously, which is fine. Some take it very seriously, which is fine too.

“Pride is just another thing to make money from... shops don’t give money from Father’s Day products to Fathers For Justice, or from Mother’s Day to Refuge”

I’ve seen lots of merchandise about with shops putting rainbows on everything. There’s some criticism that the shops don’t donate a part of the money they make off such things to LGBT+ charities. This, to me, kind of means we’ve made it, Pride is just another thing to make money from. The same shops don’t give money from Father’s Day products to Fathers For Justice, or from Mother’s Day to Refuge, or to the Samaritans from Christmas paraphernalia. Merch drives visibility and acceptance too. I know there’s other arguments about it all but that’s my vaguely political point. Being vaguely political isn’t something I do particularly. I’m just a bit vague.

So, just to confirm things, this is a column about not much, written by a single guy who’s currently out of work, who deals with anxiety and depression and writes whatever pops into his head. That’s how rip roaringly exciting things will get. You have been vaguely warned.

It’s Pride month! You can feel the hope rising in Brighton and beyond. Lots of smaller Prides have already happened or are happening over the next few weekends. London Pride just came and went. I was up in London, but not for Pride - I’ve never been. Having lived most of my life in Straightland, I’m a relative newcomer to the LGBTQ scene, and am still struggling to embody pride.

I was at a straight wedding. My cousin married his girlfriend and it was a great day. I think it was one of the first family occasions I’ve been to since I started transitioning at which I have felt truly comfortable. In my own skin. Certainly the first since I have almost finished my bottom surgery. That’s trans code for genital affirming surgery, which you know and I know is gruelling, and never undertaken lightly. Those of us who do it, do it because we need to. To feel alright about ourselves. I mean it’s pretty strange if you think about it; no-one knows what’s in my under-pants at a weekend is because I have a penis. I can’t do, and I swear the reason I felt so relaxed, nicer person to be around, now that I don’t have this over-whelming sense of ‘wrongness’. Maybe this is pride.

“Coming out as trans, being open about my mental health issues, and accepting my autism are all part of the journey leading to pride”

It seems to me it’s only when we leave our shame behind and walk with our heads held high, that we will be able to stop hurting one another on any scale, whether it be civil war, a household row, or a punch-up on a Friday night. It’s only pride that allows us to let others be, and be themselves, without judgement.

It’s only pride that allows us to let others be, and be themselves, without judgement. It’s a hot topic in psychosociological discourse. How much shame we all carry, and which is the fruit of self-hatred. Selfishness in this setting is crucial. I can’t give love to others from an empty tank. It’s not narcissistic to look after myself so that I can become the best me. Surely it is incumbent upon us all to do this?

It seem s to m e it’s only when w e leave our sham e behind and w alk w ith our heads held high, that w e will be able to stop hurting one another on any scale, w hether it be civil w ar, a household row, or a punch-up on a Friday night. It’s only pride that allows us to let others be, and be themselves, without judgement.
